

The Adirondack Research Consortium
The Wild Center
North Country Climate Club
St. Lawrence University
Environmental Studies Department at St. Lawrence University
Proudly Present

Communicating Climate Change with Young People

A One-Day Workshop

Eben Holden Hall, St. Lawrence University, Canton, NY, Thursday, March 7th, 2024, 10:00-3:30

Sponsored in part by the McDonald Foundation, Inc.

Preliminary Program

Young people are taking on a more prominent role in the battle against climate change. This workshop explores effective communication strategies for conveying climate change information between educators, policymakers, parents, and youth. It also considers how young individuals can communicate with adults, parents, and professionals. Additionally, the workshop delves into the broader challenge of communicating climate change information with children. By fostering discussions and involving experts, the event seeks to formulate findings and recommendations to improve inter-generational communication on climate change.

10:00-10:15 Welcome and Introductions

10:15 – 11:15 Keynote: Harriet Shugarman, Executive Director, ClimateMama, and author of How to Talk to Your Kids About Climate Change, Turning Angst Into Action.

11:15 – 12:15 Panel: Youth Perspectives on Climate Change, Sunita Halasz, Moderator

12:15 – 1:00 Lunch

1:00 – 2:00 Panel: Ongoing Research, Program Perspectives, and Questions Raised
Harriet Shugarman, ClimateMama, Moderator
Joseph Henderson, Paul Smith's College
Jen Kretser, The Wild Center
Tahentahawi Chubb-Smith, Prescott College & Akwesasne Mohawk, Bear Clan

2:00 – 2:45 Breakout Discussions: Perspectives and Recommendation for Action involving workforce implications, policy, public education, school-focused education, and visioning in general.
Dr. Jon Rosales, St. Lawrence University, Moderator

2:45 – 3:30 Wrap-up: Whole Group Discussion: Review of the Breakout Discussions and Final Thoughts.
Adjourn

Many thanks to our Workshop Cosponsors!

ADIRONDACK CENTER for WRITING

Bringing people and words together

<https://adirondackcenterforwriting.org/>